The Academic Achievement Center is a free walk-in center where students who are trying to learn new study skills can receive assistance with various learning strategies. Some of the areas that the AAC can help with include: time management, note-taking skills, and exam preparation. Kevin Sullivan, Director of Academic Support, believes that the best feature of this program is the fact that it entails “peers helping peers”. The AAC is open Monday through Thursday, 4-8 PM.

Looking to get away this semester? Do you want to study in a new and interesting place enriched with exciting culture? If so, you are in the right place! UConn offers over 300 study abroad programs spread over 6 continents and 65 countries. There is even an option to participate in the Semester at Sea program. If you are interested in going abroad, don't wait any longer! The deadline to apply is September 27th, so hurry into the study abroad office located on the third floor of the CUE building.
